

THE PAST, PRESENT, AND FUTURE OF US OIL AND GAS

with Daniel Raimi, Director of the Equity in the Energy Transition Initiative at Resources for the Future

Oil and gas have long been central to the growth of the US economy, national security, and the environment. Join us to review the history of the industry, assess where it stands today, and offer thoughts on how its future direction might affect the domestic economy, global geopolitics, climate change, and more.

The presentation will be followed by a panel discussion with Professors Jeremy Weber (Pitt-GSPIA) and Karen Clay (CMU-Heinz). A livestream of the event will be available.

Wednesday, March 26
3:00 - 4:30 pm
Posvar Hall, Room 3911

University of Pittsburgh

Graduate School of Public and International Affairs

